EXPERIENCE

Research

Collinge and Associates, 2001-present. This is an independent research and consulting organization funded by research grants from the National Institutes of Health and other sources to develop innovative approaches to benefiting public health.

- Principal Investigator (multi-PI with Leila Kozak, PhD), National Cancer Institute (NCI), grant # R44CA210723 - 01A1, 9/17-4/20: "Integrative Approaches in Palliative Care: Provider-Driven Online Continuing Education." This is a FastTrack (Phase I/II) project to develop and evaluate an online continuing education program for multidisciplinary health care practitioners working in palliative care, on use of integrative therapies in palliative care.
- Principal Investigator (multi-PI with Janet Kahn, PhD), National Institute of Mental Health (NIMH), grant #1R44MH088063, 9/12-5/15: "Mission Reconnect: Promoting resilience and re-integration of post-deployment veterans and their families." This is a Phase II project to develop and evaluate, in a four-arm randomized controlled trial, a self-directed, multimedia educational program of integrative behavioral health and wellness practices for home use by post-deployment OIF/OEF/OND veterans and their partners.
- Principal Investigator (multi-PI with Leila Kozak, PhD), National Cancer Institute (NCI), grant #1R43CA157005-01, 7/11-6/13: "Palliative Care Provider Online Education in Evidence-Based Complementary Therapies." This is a Phase I project to develop and pilot test an online continuing education course for multidisciplinary health care practitioners working in palliative care, on use of complementary therapies in palliative care.
- Grantee, Muscular Therapy Institute Foundation, Inc., March-July, 2012. "Caregiver Education in Use of Touch and Massage in Cancer Care in Vietnam." This project was a collaboration with personnel at the National Cancer Hospital in Hanoi, to develop a family caregiver education program in the Palliative Care Department using a Vietnamese language version of the Touch, Caring and Cancer program for Vietnamese families.
- Principal Investigator, National Institute of Mental Health (NIMH), grant #1R43MH088063-01A1, 4/10-3/12: "Mission Reconnect: Promoting resilience and re-integration of post-deployment veterans and their families." This was a Phase I project to develop and pilot test a multimedia educational program in integrative behavioral health and wellness practices for home use by post-deployment OIF/OEF/OND veterans and their partners.
- Principal Investigator, National Institute of Arthritis, Musculoskeletal and Skin diseases (NIAMS), grant #R44 AR52640-01A1, 9/08-8/11: "Web-based program for symptom management in fibromyalgia." This was a Phase II SBIR project to develop and evaluate an automated web-based behavioral self-monitoring and feedback intervention with 700+ people with fibromyalgia.
- Principal Investigator, National Cancer Institute (NCI), grant #R44CA103606-3, 9/06-8/09: "Couples and Cancer: Building Partner Efficacy in Caring." This Phase II project produced the multimedia program Touch, Caring and Cancer: Simple Instruction for Family and Friends, and conducted a randomized controlled trial with 97 patient/caregiver dyads. Outcomes included impact on symptoms/side effects of treatment and quality of life for both caregiver and patient, and caregiving behavior.

- Principal Investigator, National Institute of Arthritis, Musculoskeletal and Skin diseases (NIAMS), grant #R43 AR52640-01A1, 6/06-6/07: “Web-based program for symptom management in fibromyalgia.” This was a Phase I project to pilot-test a web-based behavioral self-monitoring and feedback intervention.
- Principal Investigator, National Institute on Aging (NIA), grant #1R43AG024016-01, 5/04-5/05: “Promoting Healthy Aging through ‘Elder-Healer’ Training.” This project trained 60 seniors in Boston in Healing Touch techniques as a means of promoting volunteerism, social engagement, sense of meaning and life purpose. Outcomes evaluated included impact on trainees’ well-being and quality of life. Analysis included both quantitative and qualitative methods.
- Principal Investigator, National Cancer Institute (NCI), grant #R43CA103606-01, 8/03-3/04: “Couples and Cancer: Building Partner Efficacy in Caring.” This project trained 49 family members of cancer patients in communication and manual caregiving skills (massage, Therapeutic Touch) to improve home-based caregiving. Outcomes included impact on quality of relationship, quality of life for both caregiver and patient, and caregiving behavior. Analysis included both quantitative and qualitative methods.

The Flowing River Institute, San Francisco, California. 1994-1996.

- Principal Investigator. Designed and conducted an outcome study of a group behavioral treatment program for 60 adults with chronic fatigue syndrome, training patients in mindfulness-based stress reduction and medical chi kung practices. Evaluated the impact of the program on the progression of CFS over twelve months (funded by the Stupski Family Fund).

The Cancer Support & Education Center, Menlo Park, California. 1987-1996.

- Principal Investigator. Designed and conducted a behavioral and psychosocial outcome study of an adaptation of the ten-week program for 45 persons with HIV/AIDS.
- Principal Investigator. Designed and conducted a study of the effects of a group breath therapy technique on immune functioning in 45 participants (funded by a grant from the Strom Foundation).
- Principal Investigator. Designed and conducted a behavioral and psychosocial outcome study of The Center’s group program for 59 cancer patients (dissertation research).
